

Nominal power overstates the real chance of success

Treating the comparator as exact halves the trial

